"DEAD MAN" KEPT ALIVE 97 HOURS

ENDLESS CHAIN WINNING GRIM BATTLE TO SPARE LIFE OF STRICKEN BOY

Evansville, Ill., March 10 (I. F. S.)—A slight improvement was noted in the condition of Albert Frick, 22, the "living dead man," today.

"The pulse is active and the pulse brisk," said Dr. Charles F. Reed, "it is a hopeful sign."

The thirty-seventh hour of Frick's paralysis, which automatically stopped his ability to breathe, found 66 fellow employees of the Public Service Company of Illinois still working in shifts of ten keeping him alive by artificial respiration.

"Frick himself was leading every effort today to conserve his strength," said Dr. Reed. "He is a hopeful sign."

Today Frick lay on the most part with his eyes turned toward the ceiling. One of the only breaks in the somnolent calm was when he asked, "Is Carl coming?" he asked, "I want to see him."

PUTS 9 BULLETS INTO BRIDE, ENDS OWN LIFE
Providence, March 10.—In a cottage at No. 69 Russell avenue, East Providence, today, a maddened attempt to end his life by shooting himself in the body of his 30-year-old bride, then stumbled into the cellar and killed himself.

Mrs. Anna Davis, formerly of Attleboro, is dying in the Rhode Island Hospital, only a few blocks removed from the hospital in which her married daughter is confined. The bride of three-score years ago found bleeding and unconscious in the cottage house by a neighbor who heard the fusillade and ran to the scene of the crime. The bride had almost reached the cottage when the lone shot that killed the slayer rang out from below.

Police were hurriedly notified by a frightened neighbor and they found the dying woman in the house, where eight of the bullets were used for and extracted. The body could not be located and it is believed to have been decaying internally.

That the answer to the tragedy of the cottage, the police were unable to learn. Davis, a carpenter, married the 30-year-old widow last September, in Attleboro, and they had since lived in Providence. It was his second marriage.

TRAPPED BY POLICE

Mrs. Mildred P. Stanish, Southern beauty and wife of Granville S. Stanish, Jr., of Providence, direct descendant of Myles Standish, who was arrested in a Harvard student's apartment early today when Cambridge police entered. She tried to hide in a closet. Her husband led the raid.

'WILL FIGHT CHARGE TO END,' SAYS BEAUTY HELD IN HARVARD RAID

Just as his Pilgrim forefather led forays against the Indians, Granville S. Stanish, Jr., of Providence, direct descendant of Captain Myles Standish of colonial fame, led a squad of Cambridge patrolmen to an apartment at No. 1 Waterhouse street, Cambridge, kicked in a door, and found his beautiful wife, in negligee with Ormand Cook, Brown, graduate and Harvard Law School student.

Just as the raiders made their entry Mrs. Stanish dove headlong into a closet, from which hiding place her husband promptly dragged her.

The beautiful and Mildred P. Stanish, who was the past of Providence society, was today described by John J. Thayer, a man who drank heavily and was in frequent drinking. The mayor also declared that the raiders were supposed to make the house report, not one of the raiders was seen.

The Revere police station was described by the mayor as an unsanitary hole, with empty alcohol cans, beer cans, ashtrays and plates. Please Turn to Page 3, Column 3.

SAVE HUB MAIL FROM NORTH STATION FIRE

Postoffice employees and mail truck chauffeurs had done smoke early today as they ran from 50 to 60 loaded mail trucks on the loading platform at the North Station when fire was discovered on the third floor of the building. All of the mail trucks, a number of which were loaded with regular mail, were saved. An armed guard was thrown about them.

FIRE UPON MARINES

B. & M. EXPRESS KILLS HIGH SCHOOL GIRL, 13

The train tragically slipped to school and, as was their wont, crossed the tracks just ahead of the curve. At the same moment the passenger express thundered around the bend, striking the girl and throwing her into the air. Her companions just had time to clear the coast before the train struck.

The victim lived for Mrs. Athol Purcell of No. 21 Hancock street, Reading. The body was removed by police to local undertaking rooms.

MEN AND WOMEN wishing to invest money occasionally request suggestions for investment. They are advised that Messrs. Halsey-Stuart, in New York City, Herbert Fishback's Anglo and London-Paris National Bank of San Francisco, and other financial institutions, have for sale $10,000,000 of first mortgage bonds on the Hearst magazine.

These bonds pay 6 per cent., and they are safe.

THE MAGAZINES in net profits earn more than $2,000,000 a year, and more than five times the interest on the bonds, which are a first mortgage on the magazine. The security behind the ten millions of bonds amounts to more than $20,000,000. Those that wish to invest money at 6 per cent. for a period ranging from one year to ten years, may safely purchase these bonds.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE, one of five publications included in this issue, is also worth more than the total bond issue.

A similar statement was made in this column concerning an issue of bonds on Hearst news papers some time ago.

Ever since they were issued, these bonds have sold at a premium.

The Hearst magazine bonds are personally guaranteed principal and interest by Mr. Hearst. They offer opportunity to those that want 6 per cent. interest AND SAFETY.

WALL STREET returned to cheerfulness yesterday. Money for speculative went back to 4 per cent. Government bonds, including those of Mr. Mellon, proposed to retire, hopped upward, and the situation was generally cheerful. Once more, he was how you sell things short in this country.

In appreciation of Mr. Statler

TONIGHT, in Park Square, will be christened the finished result of an idea born at an Algonquin Club dinner several years ago.

At that dinner the business, educational and religious life of New England were prominently represented. Mr. Sam Powers was master of ceremonies. Mr. E. M. Statler came as the guest of honor.

Those present pictured to Mr. Statler the opportunities which New England had to offer him and promised their support. The result is the seventh hotel in the great Statler chain.

Mr. Statler has shown his faith in New England by an investment here of many millions of dollars. This investment is proof of his belief that "New England is ever a land of opportunity."

It is very gratifying indeed that so many live New England industries are showing their appreciation by being represented this evening at the opening of his latest enterprise, when Mr. Statler and his organization will be extended a real, royal Boston welcome.

Science Battles to Save 'Living Dead Man' Stricken by Malady That Baffles Physicians

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION MAINTAINED BY PRESSURE ON FRICK'S DIAPHRAGM, THEN RELASING PRESSURE, THUS FORCING AIR IN AND OUT OF HIS LUNGS.

FIGHTING IN SHADOWS OF DEATH

Photo shows how Alfred Frick, 22-year-old Chicago youth, is being kept alive by artificial respiration. He has been a "living dead man" since Sunday. He is suffering from paralysis in a most acute stage.

"ENDLESS CHAIN" KEEPS STRICKEN BOY ALIVE

Fellow-workers of young Frick assisting in their turn at the patient's bedside. Working in relays of two men each, these volunteers have "pumped" air into Frick's lungs hour after hour since he was rendered helpless by the strange malady now menacing his life. Today he showed signs of improvement, and hope for his recovery grew in the hearts of all those aiding him.

Dead Man Is Kept Alive by Science

He is supported by friends working in pairs. Alfred Frick today was reported by his three physicians to have displayed unmistakable indications of improvement.

This conscious battle to have been continued sufficiently for him to move his hands, elbows, and the arms, which he moved several times. He was responsive and cheerful.

At 11 a. m. he was given a little youth, the first food since he was first found unconscious of coffee four hours earlier.

His pulse was 125, and his temperature 100. The air he breathed was pumped into his lungs by the pulse of the relay work of an artificial respiration.

Just after 10 o'clock Frick felt a natural sleep, one of the very few which instances since he lost consciousness.

OCTOBER ARE HOPEFUL.
Many volunteers waited at the hospital for a possible call for their services in the relay work of an artificial respiration.

Frick's head, which had remained some time of lying, although he has been unable to move them, they are anxious as he lies in bed, but his condition is that they are in a cramped position.

The patient suffered was considered still to have a chance for life, although the odds against recovery were almost prohibitive.

Two of Frick's comrades, who left his room at 11 o'clock after three hours' minute period of supplying him with air, were talking away and that as a result the motions of pumping air into his lungs had to be altered.

Frick is able to utter only one word at a time, with the down stroke of his tongue, which he uses to expel the air from his lungs.

He said that his shoulders hurt from the hours of being forced against the bed, and asked that his position be changed.

Once, the men relieved at 11 o'clock, Joseph Bellini and Lewis Thayer, a nurse walked into the room and asked for "Dr. Frick."

Frick heard her and nodded beneath his head.

"No—no—no—got like—wrong number."

The artificial pumping was not interfered with even momentarily as Frick's bed was changed and he was given an alcohol bath.

His friends said that the lights seemed to make him restless and that during the night all eyes on the side of the room were turned off. They described as such picture of the shadowy dining room, on the wall as they forced air from the pump into his lungs.

"The tongue was the last to become paralyzed. It was the first to regain its strength. We are in hope that the diaphragm will be next."

HOW MALADY SPREAD.

The doctors pointed out that the paralysis began with the bladder, then the legs, the diaphragm and, lastly, the throat muscles.

Frick's desperate chance for recovery seemed to depend chiefly upon his ability to endure the treatment according to the doctors.

"If he is constitutionally able to withstand the rigors of artificial respiration until he regains the use of the diaphragm, he will live," said Dr. T. E. Conley.

A few instances of recovery from paralysis in cases where the condition has been diagnosed as Landry's disease, have been reported, said Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the KEPT ALIVE 41 DAYS.

"Landry's paralysis usually occurs in men between twenty and thirty years of age," he said. "Some cases of infantile paralysis occur which closely resemble Landry's paralysis."

"The disease usually follows acute fevers or acute infections, but the exact cause is unknown and has not yet been determined even approximately. Most patients die within one or two weeks, but a case has been reported in which the patient was kept alive for 41 days by the use of artificial respiration."

"The necessity for carrying on artificial respiration by hand rather than by mechanical devices is related to the facts of length of time, importance of the patient receiving sufficient food, and that respiration by mechanical devices cannot be regulated over a long period to avoid injury to the tissues."

SLAYER OF BOY TO FACE DEATH

Palmer, March 10.—The death chair looms before Albert L. Doe, trooper, who confessed, according to the police, to killing three-year-old John H. Kelley, whose naked body was found thrust into the water on the dump between this town and Thorndike.

Doe is held in Springfield jail without bail today on the first degree murder charge, which carries the death chair as its penalty.

The little fellow, mother is charged with being an accessory before and after the murder of her son, the boy, is in jail.

Mrs. Kelley is quoted by the police as saying, "I saw my son in bed. Two days later I found my boy was dead, and I told Doe about it."

The medical examination showed, however, that the child had been fearfully beaten, as his jaw was fractured and several teeth had been knocked out.

MEXICAN GENERAL ALL READY TO GO TO JAIL

Los Angeles, March 10 (A.P.)—General Enrique Estrada, ex-Mexican War Minister, has informed Federal officials he is ready to start serving his sentence of a year and nine months, recently imposed, for conspiracy to violate the United States neutrality laws through a revolutionary movement against Mexico.

Estrada said he would not appeal from the sentence, which also included a $10,000 fine. Twelve of Estrada's staff officers, who were convicted and received heavy sentences, also have decided not to appeal.

SINCLAIR JURY TAKES A REST

Washington, March 10 (A.P.)—Ordered in Harry F. Sinclair's contempt trial got their views on duty crossed today that Justice Hitts excused the jury until Monday and told the lawyers to take the rest of the week for straightening out the legal technicalities of the case.

The difficulties developed when the millionaire oil man's attorneys again attempted unsuccessfully to put before the jury the testimony given by the defendant before the Senate subcommittee prior to his final refusal to answer. It is upon this refusal that the Senate is asking the court to hold Sinclair in contempt.

The defense contends Sinclair already had answered to previous testimony all of the questions which he declined to answer when he appeared for the sixth and last time in response to a committee subpoena.

"The judge decided not to let the previous testimony go to the jury for the present, but to hear the law further and then decide how much of the matter at issue related to questions of fact, to be decided by the bench, and how much to questions of law, to be decided by the jury."

POLICE CHIEF HELD IN VERMONT RUM CASE

White River Junction, Vt., March 10 (A.P.)—Charles W. Smith, chief of police of Hartford, was at liberty under $1,000 bonds today after his arrest on a charge of violating the liquor laws.

The warrant, issued on complaint of State's Attorney Robert R. Tutwiler of Windsor county, charges that in November, 1926, Smith furnished a quantity of liquor to Charles L. LeBaron, cashier of the First National Bank of White River Junction and treasurer of the Interstate Trust Company.

Beauty Trapped in Raid by Husband

against her husband. She had no realization of the fact that a private detective, Norman S. Behneke, of a Providence agency, had been on her trail since the day that Judge Blodgett handed down his verdict.

Behneke said this morning that twice before he could have arrested Mrs. Standish and the Harvard student together, but the woman's husband was not present, and Behneke could not arrest the maid.

TRAILED FOR DAYS.

Some days ago Behneke trailed the woman and the college youth to Pawtucket, the trail being comparatively easy, because young Cook was using his mother's automobile.

There, according to the detective, he could have furnished evidence to procure their arrest. But he had no warrant and the husband was not present.

Again on the night of March 2, according to Behneke, the two were together in Cook's Cambridge apartment. The same one raised this morning, but again he was without a warrant, and the husband was missing.

Yesterday, he reached the husband in Providence, told him that the two would probably be together again, and the action of the Pilgrims hurried northward in Boston.

A warrant was asked for and issued in East Cambridge, and early this morning the raid was staged.

The highest bid for the raiding party, which consisted of Detective Behneke, and Patrolmen James Prior, his storm center of the Harvard riot—John Falvey, and John Harris.

A big legal question is what will be Standish's next move in his marital affairs. His plea for divorce has not only been denied by a superior court justice, but the supreme court of his State has confirmed the finding.

The Standish divorce was the next action of Providence society last October. The husband told of plac-

City Hall Really Goes Dry; the Water Was Shut Off

Water everywhere and not a drop to drink.

That was the saying at City Hall when employees went to the tanks and faucets and found them so dry as the Sahara.

A clause issued by Commissioner of Public Works, J. J. Sullivan, caused a superintendent to shut off the water supply from the street because of a leak in one of the pipes.

Everybody from Mayor Nichols down, felt the need of the water, but had to put up with the inconvenience until the necessary repairs were made.

Standish, head practically his whole plan for divorce on this occurrence. In her own defense Mrs. Standish told how Standish had brood and won her when she was an unaccompanied girl in a fourth room town where he had been attending college. She said that her parents had never approved of the match, and that she was frequently humiliated by them and her husband.

She told that her husband had himself taken her on parties where drinks were served, and though he knew that she was susceptible to a very small quantity of liquor, induced her to drink. The husband did not deny this, one of the reasons for the "rumble hands" charge.

Mrs. Standish is a beautiful blonde, petite and attractive in every way. She was the belle of the little Southern town where Standish won her, and afterward became the belle of Providence society.

Standish is the son of Granville H. Standish, a wealthy Providence man.

Kilmore was arrested before Judge Ralph Robbins in District Court charged with drunkenness in operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Kilmore was concentrated under protection of warships.

The stranger Kilo left Wulu in day with foreign women and children taken aboard several days ago as a consequence of riots that preceded occupation of the town by Cantonese.

CANT STREET, SO THEY TAKE AN 'OUTING'

Haverhill, March 10.—Although not the season either for Winter or Summer carnivals, more than 1,000 citizens, gathered operators and spectators for a day of sports and fun on an "outing" today.

It was an outing because under the peace pact, now in effect three years, the workers have agreed not to indulge in a strike or walkout. But it is known that there has been dissatisfaction over the small wage increase granted the employees recently by the Haverhill shoe board of arbitration.

Although the cessation from work was a "outing," none of the workers, however, will be home or chances of anything of the kind. Most of them went to their homes.

The "outing" managers to lie up the entire factory, which has been working on run orders.

REVERE CHIEF UNDER FIRE

Just glid around everywhere. This condition, the mayor said, he could not get the chief to correct.

DISHONEST IN ONE WAY.

Mayor Walsh, in describing conditions in the police department, repeated that he did not think Chief Dyer dishonest in the sense that he would accept bribes, but that he was dishonest in wanting time which the taxpayers paid for.

"What is the use of hiring more police in Revere," the mayor declared at one point in his testimony, "when members of the present force spend their time loafing along the beach in the summer time?"

Pressed to specifically name policemen who were loafing, the mayor refused to mention any names.

"Hearing today was in the nature of a human holiday for the various political factions in Revere and politicians of high and low degree were on hand to float over the sensational charges that were made from time to time."

"When the time clocks in the police department are out of order, you are supposed to know about it," A. J. Lee.

"If this time clock were out of commission, and if I were required many times to go to the factory, I would be sure to get out of commission, according to the factory expert. It was doing better, as he, Walsh, immediately became angry."

"When I explain why I'm taking this," he hastily replied, "you will understand. This time clock was out of commission most of the time. It was repaired and repaired. Each time it was put out of commission, according to the factory expert, it was doing better, as he, Walsh, immediately became angry."

Throughout today's hearing Chief Dyer, sitting by his counsel, kept his eyes fixed on the Mayor as the latter told of his efforts to increase the efficiency of the police department and how he found this could only be done by suspending the chief.

Several times counsel for the chief interposed objections to the Mayor's remarks, but with the witness also vouching with the power of the prosecuting officer, these objections had little effect.

MAYOR'S CHARGE.

Mayor Walsh, in his charge, said: "I now speak of the leave of absence which the chief took on June 5, 1922. He disappeared for four or five days and no one knew where."

"On his return he came into office. To put it mildly he was not in very good condition. He admitted having been off drinking and said he was willing to take any punishment. He threw himself on my mercy."

"I tell you to show that I had no wish to make things harder for Chief Dyer. On his own statement I could have suspended him then. I merely wanted to get the police department in good condition. I wanted it efficient."

"After some talk he promised he wouldn't drink any more and left the office. Several times after that I suspected him of drinking. I tried to get hold of him. Tried to get him up, but couldn't locate him. When I called the station they would tell me he was in court."

Drugs Blast Career of Rosy-Cheeked Boy

A little more than two years ago, a rosy-cheeked stripling of 18, came to Boston from his home in the western part of Massachusetts, for the purpose of studying navigation and seamanship on the schoology Nantucket. The youth came from an excellent home and was enthusiastic at the prospect of becoming a naval officer.

Today police from the Back Bay station broke into a room on Duane street in the Back Bay and found this same youth, gaunt and emaciated, stretched out on a bed in a hideous stupor. A spoon on a chair by the side of the bed, in the sides of which clung particles of morphine, told the tragic story.

The boy was aroused from his stupor and removed to police station, when he was sufficiently revived to tell his name as John McIntyre and his age twenty.

Examination of the boy by police surgeons showed that the skin on his arms, legs and body shone with a yellowish half-moon scar—evidence of how the youth is enslaved by the drug habit.

The boy, a shadow of his former self, retained some pride and he insisted to the police that his home was in Nova Scotia. Chiefly questioned, however, he revealed a casual ignorance of the Province with the police learned his real story from outside sources.

"This boy finally told the police that he had come to Boston to become a cadet on the school ship but had a work or two on his hands."

He fell in with several men who took him on a trip to New York and it was there he was first introduced to try a "shot" of morphine.

In a few weeks' time he was an addict and then thoughts of becoming a naval or merchant marine officer vanished.

When the youth was arrested he had no morphine needle was found. Police believe the boy, although emaciated, heard the noise made by the officers entering his room and threw the needle or eye-dropper out of the window.

At the State House analysts showed the room found by the side of the bed contained morphine. The boy will be arraigned in court later.

FIND UNIDENTIFIED MAN DEAD ON NEPSON FLATS

The body of an unidentified man, apparently a laborer, was found by the police in the middle of the Neponset River, 200 yards offshore near the boatyards of George Lacey & Sons, Ericson street, Neponset, today.

Medical Examiner Leary was notified by police of Station 11 and the body was removed to the morgue of the Southern Mortuary. Police believe the body was dropped on the flat by the tide. The man was about 45 years old, wore overalls and a work cap and had been dead about 24 hours, police say.

TWO POINT TO EX-SOLDIER AS SLUGGER

Whitman police today found two persons who told stories supporting the theory that a former Fort Banks soldier committed the brutal attack on Mrs. Florence Mourad in the Back Bay railroad station, Saturday.

Mrs. James Oliver, living at No. 103 Banks street, opposite the station, declared she saw a man acting strangely about the station late Friday night and saw him three again the following morning.

The description she gave tallied with that of the soldier, according to the police. A Fort Banks sergeant named Sullivan saw a man of the same description near the station and was spoken to by him Saturday forenoon.

After coming from the store when I saw the man sitting around the station and acting peculiarly," said Mrs. Oliver. "He was tall and thin, wearing a gray suit and light soft hat."

I mentioned it to my husband. To my surprise, when I put up the blinds on the station side of my house the next morning, there was the man again over by the station. I am now convinced he had something to do with the attack on Mrs. Mourad."

Mrs. Mourad today returned from the hospital to the home of her mother at No. 4 Thayer street, Revere. She declared the photograph of the soldier satisfied her he was her assailant. Her

ANDREWS STAYS AS DRY CHIEF

Washington, March 10 (S.N.S.)—General Lincoln C. Andrews, dry chief, will remain actual head of the government's prohibition machine despite passage of the organization bill providing for a prohibition commissioner, it was announced at the treasury today.

Under the law, the secretary of the treasury may designate such authority as he sees fit to the prohibition commissioner, but Secretary Mellon indicated he would continue the present system under which Andrews is responsible.

Prohibition policies will be worked out by Mellon and Andrews while the new commissioner will be an executive officer to carry out the ideas of his superiors, it was explained.

ONTARIO GOING WET AFTER 10-YEAR DRY RULE

Toronto, Ont., March 10 (A.P.).—Ten years of prohibition in Ontario are to be replaced by government sale of liquors under the provisions of a government bill before the legislature.

The new liquor control act, to become effective about May 1, or on a day to be fixed by proclamation, makes government stores the sole distributors for liquors and places administration in charge of a commission.

This commission is given wide powers. It can refuse a permit to an individual without explanation. It will control the brands and prices of liquors to be sold and the hours of sale, and it may regulate it if, in the amount of liquor to be sold at the time.

The bill carries severe penalties for violations. Two months' jail sentence also are mandatory for persons found with liquor in their possession not purchased in government stores.

Permits are to be granted to persons of nationality to persons over 21 who have been residents in the province more than one month. They will be required for those or less than one month.

Permits are restricted to six ounces per person. Druggists may use their only as a solvent or for medicinal purposes.

Importation of liquors from foreign countries may be consumed in hotel and club guest rooms and tourist camps. No public drinking will be allowed.

'Thank You---Please'
Makes Home Happy

FIRST of all, the happy home should be congenial; where there is a family growing up we must learn to give consideration to another's views, must not be quite so certain that our own opinion is the only correct one.

No home can be perfectly happy unless the supply of "pleases" and "thank you's" is inexhaustible.

Children should be given tasks to do; must be taught to help mother, the burden-bearer.

And mother? Mother must develop a sense of humor, must form the habit of looking for the funny side of a situation. If she will do this, instead of fretting or nagging about the quarrels of youngsters, the spirit of happiness will spread throughout the house.

DON'T STRESS KIDNIES' LITTLE FAULTS.

In the happy home the parents are interested in the school work of their children and youngsters learn to bring father and mother the little troubles which seem so big to them. They know they can always come to father and mother for sympathy and advice, a feeling which will persist in later days when troubles are all too real.

In my opinion, it is even wise to appear to be a little blind at times, not to see each and every little thing the children do that is wrong. When there is a major fault, correct it, of course, but remember that little faults, if you but let them, will take care of themselves.

And now just a hint of one thing I believe I have learned in my eighteen years of married life.

FATHER ALSO MAY BE TIRED.

When the father of the family comes home in the evening remember that he, too, may be tired.

Meet him with a smile.

Then, feed him.

The rest should be easy.

At times, if you are impatient, keep it until after supper, when he will be in better mood to consider it.

Remember that the authority of the greatest of druggists that "All the world's a stage."

And all the men and women merely players.

Mothers—and fathers, too—let us learn to act well our parts, in order that when the final curtain falls we may hear "Well done, Sir."

FIND MISSING PRIZE LETTERS
PATROLMAN L. END SATURDAY

Sick and feeble, Patrolman Michael Donahue of the Jamaica Plain station lost four letters on the New Haven Railroad embankment at Forest Hills. He told superior officers after missing that length of time early today.

All four men and women patrolmen of Station 12 were sent out to look for the missing officer when he failed to pull his signal books.

The last was pulled was at 1:34 and the search began when his 211 patrolman returned.

He was found shortly after 5 and told Captain Mason that he had been inspecting freight cars when he was taken ill.

Patrolman Donahue has an exceptionally good record, according to his mates and his superiors.

Moscow, March 10 (A.P.)—Ratification by Italy of the treaty formally recognizing the annexation of the Bessarabia by Rumania is declared by Soviet Russia to be an act "unfriendly to Soviet Russia."

U. S. 'DRY' PACT
WITH MEXICO
TO CONTINUE

Washington, March 10 (A.P.)—One sign of stability in Mexican-American relations, for the present at least, is seen in the fact that no official step has been taken toward termination of the existing treaty signed a year ago by the two countries to regulate the transborder shipment of arms, liquor and other commodities.

The treaty became effective on March 21, 1926, and was for one year. It provided that it should continue in force after the year expired, unless either side asked for cancellation.

A thirty-day notice from either government would terminate it.

It was in a report to the War Department Commandant Eulogio Ortiz said he had only met a few small groups of rebels during a recent tour of Durango.

That former President Obregon is a candidate in the present election is not considered a foregone conclusion, it is reported.

Conversation between Obregon and Rodolfo Guzman, retired bullfighting boy, was being commented on.

Meeting the ex-matador on the streets, Obregon is reported to have asked him whether he intended to return to the bullring. Obregon said: "Your power will be greater than mine, because I have been trapped again."

SAYS HITT GAVE
'SHUT MOUTH'

Manuel Lopez, a Westport youth, who assisted in snatching $500 cash from the pockets of a clerk at the Westport Hotel, today testified in Federal Court today that he received $20 from Constable Charles H. Hitt to "keep his mouth shut."

Hitt, and Philip Sherman, Harry Sherman and Oscar Brightman, all Westport constables are on trial before Judge John A. Peters and a jury on the charge of conspiracy to snaffle loot.

William H. Wood, truck operator, and Charles C. Lewis, proprietor of the Ocean House, Westport, are also on trial.

Repos testified he was at the beach to gather seaweed when he was engaged by Hitt to help clear the cases of alcohol up the beach, and that he worked for about six hours, then, prior to going home, approached Hitt for his pay.

"Here is five dollars for the work," Hitt replied, according to the witness, "and here is twenty dollars to keep your mouth shut."

Cross-examined, witness said the work was done in broad daylight, witnessed by hundreds of townfolk.

Lopez also testified that he corroborated the testimony of Daniel J. P. Dwyer, a constable, who said he had only met a few small groups of rebels during a recent tour of Durango.

That former President Obregon is a candidate in the present election is not considered a foregone conclusion, it is reported.

Conversation between Obregon and Rodolfo Guzman, retired bullfighting boy, was being commented on.

Meeting the ex-matador on the streets, Obregon is reported to have asked him whether he intended to return to the bullring. Obregon said: "Your power will be greater than mine, because I have been trapped again."

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and dazed out. That is the way you feel if you are suffering from dizziness. It is a common ailment, and it can be cured. The cure is simple. It is to get the blood flowing. The blood is the life of the body, and it must be kept flowing. If it is not flowing, the body will be dazed and dizzy.

Adventures of a Girl From
New England in the Movie Colony

"Big parade," she sang out. "We're all going to Tia Juana, Hobbie!"

READ THIS FIRST

BOLBIE RANSOM, a demure little Dedham school teacher of 22, is "movie struck."

The drawback to her ambition is lack of money. Her widowed father will not lend her a penny. Neither will her maiden aunt GERTRUDE nor ANDREW JERROLD, who is in love with her and wants her to stay at home and marry him.

She finally borrows five hundred dollars from Mrs. PAC-KING, a well-to-do widow who is her father's prospective second wife, and goes to Hollywood with a full purse and a high heart. There Bobbie sees an assistant director named ALGUS MAC-CLOUD, who notices her particularly and gets her a place. At the studio, Bobbie falls down a flight of steps, a most in the arms of ROY SCHULTZ, a famous director. Schultz gives her a tiny part as a ballet dancer, much to the disgust of MONICA MONT, another "extra."

One afternoon MacCloud takes Bobbie for a drive up into the Hollywood Hills and tries to make love to her. When she rebuffs him, he gallantly takes her to a restaurant where she is to meet Monica for supper. Monica shows up with the news that she's just been turned out of her boarding house for not paying her rent. While the girls are waiting for a table, MacCloud comes in with a girl.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediate.

3. By after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish slavery among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Disgraceful Exhibition

Put the BIG Blame for Senate Filibusters on the Republican Leaders in the House; There Is Where It Belongs

It is universally agreed that the Senate made a disgraceful exhibition of itself in the closing hours of Congress. Its rule allowing unlimited debate permitted filibusters to kill the bills for Boulder Dam, emergency army officer relief and public buildings, by preventing votes on those bills before adjournment on March 4.

In the jan the general deficiency bill also failed of passage. It would have provided funds for the Veterans' Bureau to make loans on soldiers' bonus certificates, as had been promised to the veterans.

Over half the Senate was ready to pass these bills if they could have been brought to vote.

The Senate deserves nearly everything that can be said about it. It could have defeated the filibusters by voting cloture—which means limiting debate on a bill by fixing a time vote on it. But cloture requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate. Many Senators who were for the bills were against cloture, because they are jealous of the Senate's prerogative of free and full debate.

Now comes a country-wide clamor for the Senate to adopt the gag rule which Vice-President Dawes proposes. He wants the Senate to accept cloture by majority vote.

It will be a dark day for the American government if the Dawes gag has to be adopted. It will make the Senate what the House is now—a sort of legislative printing press for registering laws proposed by the administration.

This country doesn't need more legislative speech such as the House supplies. It needs more legislative brakes such as the Senate supplies.

The Senate's rule of unlimited debate kept it out of the League of Nations, holding that organization up to public view month after month until the people understood it.

The Senate's right of unlimited debate did not defeat the World Court but DID expose its perils and made the Senate agree to enter the court only with reservations which, happily, proved unacceptable to European nations.

But for the Senate's present rules we should be in both League and Court.

It is only every two years, in the short session of Congress, lasting from the first Monday in December to March 4, that the Senate's rules do not work. A filibuster is impossible in the long session years, having no fixed date of adjournment. Until the antiquated and unscientific short session is abolished, the Senate has not to modify its procedure so that it can transact the nation's legislation business.

It might accept the President's suggestion to pass appropriation bills for TWO years during the long session, leaving the short session free for general legislation.

The Senate has got to act in order to keep the country's respect.

The fundamental trouble, however, is the short session itself. It can be abolished only by changing the Constitution as proposed in the Norris amendment, which will have Congress meet every year early in January.

The Senate passed the Norris amendment. The House would have passed it, if it could have voted on it. But the powerful House Rules Committee held it off the floor, though the House Judiciary Committee had reported it favorably.

The Senate is stupid in being a slave to its rules under all conditions, but it is right in clinging to those rules in principle.

The reactionary leaders in the House will not ALLOW the Senate and the Congress of the United States to become a modern legislative body.

When Congress adjourned on March 4, forty-eight State Legislatures were in session, more than enough to have ratified the Norris amendment and made it the law of the land before next Congress assembled.

Put the BIG blame where it belongs—on the Republican leaders in the House.

"BRUNCH"

Have You Heard That Modern Word?

A. D. Laaker, recently head of the Shipping Board, now returned to base money making, introduces you to the word "brunch."

It is used by young people of today, says he, to describe a meal taken too early for luncheon, too late for breakfast. "Planning youth, having come to bed late, getting up hungry, immediately eat, at half-past ten or eleven, and calls it 'brunch.' A word made of 'breakfast' and 'luncheon.'"

An amusing word, but not promising for those that use it and "eat it" too often.

Irregular eating and irregular sleeping mean small probability of general success.

When Laaker was younger, making his start in the world on his own account, he never ate any "brunches." His first meal of the day might have been named "snurple," because it was a little too late for last night's supper, a little too early for this morning's breakfast.

The world's success is for those that eat "snurple" and the world's failures and disappointments for the "brunch" eaters.

BROADCASTING THE LAWMAKERS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Finnish Diet has installed broadcasting to enable the nation to listen in on the speeches of the legislators.

According to cables, it paid for itself the first night. A rural motor coach to enlighten the world upon the momentous question of the future of hams.

As the speech ran on and on, one of his constituents a hundred miles away called up on the telephone and asked an official to tell the long-winded one that if he did not stop he would be defeated at the next election.

The speech stopped.

Which little incident recommends the idea for our own Senate and House of Representatives.

If speeches are broadcasted from the floor it may mean the appearance of a new sort of political orator.

Oratory of the political kind has practically disappeared in recent years. The newspapers and magazines reach the people as they did not do years ago. They, rather than speakers, influence voters of today.

Presidential campaigns are more and more "front porch" conferences rather than long stumping tours.

With the greater use of the radio the importance of ability in public speaking increases.

But it will be speaking of a different sort. The cultivation of a good voice will be still valuable, but the gestures of Delaire will be thrown in the wall.

The radio orator will have to think more and practice in front of the mirror less. But he will have to be interesting as well as informative if he wants to compete with the jazz band.

Outside of returning a premium on speaking ability, broadcasting the Senate will save all the tons of paper printed with "Congressional Record speeches" for home consumption.

And then again into fans who can't get debates they want to hear may start a movement to transfer Washington to a more central location.

If the plan is adopted these four things may result. But the greatest of these would be turning off the spout of speakers who don't know when to stop.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

TRIBUTE.
A STRENGTHY stream of fresh tribute began to flow into the Leonard Moore Hospital, Natick, when it became known to the officers and enlisted men of the life industry that their beloved leader, COLONEL JOHN D. MURPHY, had undergone an operation for appendicitis. COLONEL MURPHY will retire in a few weeks and the operation prevented him from leaving his regiment in SOUTH BRITAIN on March 17. The COLONEL could not keep the mist of happiness from his eyes as the flowers from his men were brought to his bedside.

"EVERYBODY'S DOG."
When a messenger from the ANGEL MEMORIAL HOSPITAL returned home the wife's pet cat, the young carrier was told with eager inquiry about "Flex" O'V. ELINOR FULLER, printed in Bernard, who has been under "Angust" treatment. "Oh, everybody's dog," the boy responded. "He likes everyone and every one likes Flex."

FORD AND TURKEY.
C. W. BARLOW, Boston flower dealer, tells a "Ford story" that is a joke. He says: "Henry Ford sat down with his devoted wife 25 years ago to consider the family budget. It was finally determined they could not afford turkey for Christmas."

DIRECTOR.
GEORGE H. WALSH has taken his place as a director of the CITIZENS' NATIONAL BANK, O. J. is one of the dominant business men of the High, Federal and Jersey future sections. The bank strengthened its local business lines in securing him as a director.

LISTEN WORLD!

SHALL A GIRL FOLLOW HIM

DICTATES OF HER HEAD

OR HEART WHEN SHE MARRIES

Two girls have put that question up to me.

They are both well-educated, pretty, representative American girls in the early twenties. They both swim, play tennis, wear bobbed hair and short skirts, read the latest books and talk the sophisticated vernacular of their day.

Lois lives in a large insurance office—she is a well-given, motherly girl and spends the rest of her time on her hair and wardrobe.

Lois lives at home and supports the housekeeping for her mother and father.

They both want to marry—and they both have plenty of suitors. They are both "looking over" in the first place, nobody "falls in love" with them.

They are both "looking over" in the first place, nobody "falls in love" with them.

Gin Lane-Hogarth's Picture

High Prices, Fortunately, Keep Our Bootlegging From Being as Bad as This

The picture by Hogarth on this page is not pleasant. But it is well to remind intelligent readers of the power that alcohol has over human beings.

Gin, whiskey and other spirits are MODERN poisons. The Greeks, Romans and other ancient drank to excess, but they had no spirits, no ALCOHOL. Had they possessed it as we do now, their civilization might not have lasted so long. This unpleasant picture will make readers warn others concerning the drink evil.

When Hogarth lived in England, 1697 to 1764, gin and whiskey were new, men and governments had not learned to be afraid of them. And you could read over the doors of five hundred alcohol dives the sign that you see in this picture, "Drunk for one penny, dead drunk for twopence, clean straw for nothing."

You could drink until you were drunk for one penny, drink until you were unconscious for twopence. And when you fell to the ground they would give you, "for nothing," clean straw to lie on.

With marvelous power Hogarth tells in this picture the story of what gin drinking actually DID to London's miserable poor.

On the left you see the pawnbroker taking in the tools with which the mechanic works, the kitchen utensils that the woman uses for the feeding of her family—traded in for money to buy gin.

In the background a woman, dead of drink and nearly naked, is placed in a coffin to be buried at public expense.

A drunken woman in the foreground allows her child to fall to the death, and at her feet a man feebly holds bottle and glass in the last throes of alcoholic destruction.

A monstrously fat man in a wheelbarrow is having gin poured into his mouth by a woman as he is wheeled home, and at the right you see a mother pouring alcohol into the mouth of her infant. THE ACTUALLY HAPPENED, not occasionally. BUT MILLIONS OF TIMES; the miserably ignorant women who found that drinking gin made them "forget their troubles" thought it would also be good for their children.

The French say "Les grands maux demandent les grands remèdes," which means "great evils demand great remedies."

England found in high taxation a partial remedy for gin drinking. Drunkenness that threatened British populations, as it threatened in Thomas Jefferson's time to destroy our populations here.

Jefferson, you will remember, demanded that the government encourage and free from taxation light wines and beer in order to discourage whiskey, which, as he said, "kills half of our men and ruins their families."

The British put a heavy tax upon spirits. And, too, usually, the brewing and drinking of beer took the place to a large extent, especially among working people, of destructive fiery spirits.

Gin, whiskey and other alcoholic poisons, like the drugs that ruin so many lives, opium, morphine, cocaine, are comparatively recent discoveries. New curses for human beings.

It is possible to make a gallon of strong whiskey, four quarts, at a cost of less than twenty-five cents.

It was possible, when this picture was made, to manufacture as much gin as a man could hold, a quart of it or more, for a penny or twopence.

This picture shows what it meant to give this cheap gin to the people of London when Hogarth lived.

Think what it would mean if our country should be cursed with alcoholic poisons at anywhere near cost. ONE DOLLAR A GALLON, IF THE LAW DID NOT INTERFERE, would provide an enormous profit.

These people at least did not DRINK WOOD ALCOHOL, he kind of poison that our bootleggers mix, more or less "discreetly," with their bootleg whiskey and gin of today.

Government agents operate in our cities and towns, but wood alcohol is nearly always present in bootleg liquor and that two quarts of gin with 3 per cent. of wood alcohol will kill a man that drinks it. A lesser amount will produce blindness and set up an irritation and disease of the kidneys that can never be cured.

Gin, cursed feed with fury fraught,
Makes human race a prey;
It enters by a deadly draught
And steals our life away.

Virtue and truth driven to despair,
Its rage compels to fly,
But cherishes with hellish care,
Thief, murder, perjury.

Damn'd up, that on the vital preys,
The liquid fire contains,
Which madness to the senses conveys
And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.

And rolls it through the veins.
